

Read me

User login by typing in username and user password

When user login .There will be a New course where user can update modules and add modules

Then there is a Module where all the data collected by user will be display in a data grid

Then you get the calculator where user can calculate number of hours of self-study and also record time spend on module